

John Chow Bali Trip May 2005

Part 2: The staff at Celug Agung Hotel

I like the staff at this quiet hotel by the Lovina seaside because they are friendly, hospitable, and helpful.

Unfortunately, I only have photos of a few of the staff.

The first and most outstanding of the staff is one of the receptionists, called Puspa Made. She is very friendly and talkative. If I need to talk to anybody, all I need to do is to walk up to the reception desk, and Puspa will be there to entertain me with conversation. She is also very helpful. For example, I wanted to get some flowers and incense for praying, and Puspa offered to buy the flowers for me everyday. No prompting required. She offered immediately when she heard of my needs. I did not need to ask her. She really puts life into the reception desk. Never winging or complaining. She made everybody happy with her cheerful attitude. Hey guys, she is single. Guys, I have this girl to introduce to you. Make sure you invite me to your wedding, okay? Her photo is below.

I mistook the sexy girl with chubby cheeks who sometimes works at the reception desk for another receptionist. I was wondering why she likes to chat me up. And I finally found out that she is the manager of the hotel. She studied in Sydney for a while and so she must have been trying to chat me up out of curiosity since I come from Melbourne. Unmarried at 26. Guys, look, another great girl available. The additional benefit is you can come to enjoy Bali in Celug Agung so often. Again, don't forget to invite me to the wedding. another thing I ask of you is to help out at the hotel. It is a good place with potential. I don't get a commission on this free tip. The photo below shows me with her.

Pak Puspa is a quiet unassuming man. He usually works as night time receptionist and security guard. He is a Yellow Bamboo instructor. When I met him, he said he was Level 5 Yellow Bamboo. But I subsequently found that he was perhaps Level 12. He is also very helpful. He is also available to talk to if anybody wants advice on local Balinese matters, or wants to buy pearls because he deals in that. If you need clarification on some Yellow Bamboo technicalities while at Celug Agung, try him. He is always willing to answer your questions on Yellow Bamboo.

Another person I have a photo of is Made who is a very quiet but alert lady working in the restaurant of Celug Agung Hotel. Very lady-like, with lady-like etiquette, lady-like slender body (hhmmm..... like those pictures of slender goddesses). Very well mannered and soft-spoken. In her 20s, and unmarried. What is wrong with you guys? Go for her! And again, don't forget to invite me to the wedding. Photo of me with her is below.

Siti is a work experience student working at the restaurant in Celug Agung Hotel. Although she is very shy, she always smiles and tries to greet me whenever I pass by the restaurant. She usually hangs around with her cousin, of the same age, whose name I forgot. Another lovely girl, guys. Don't forget my wedding invitation. Oh no, I do not get a commission for his. I am only reporting what I saw.

Here is my Yellow Bamboo friend Danny trying to crack his jokes of “goodbye” with the female restaurant staff. Siti's cousin is also in the picture. It was a fun photo session.

